A NEW ADVENTURE!

Since the defeat of the DEATH STAR, the Empire has been hard at work coming up with new ways to conquer and rule the galaxy. A search of the old Jedi Archives has revealed the existence of the legendary KYBER SABER, an ancient weapon with the ability to channel the Force to its most destructive potential. And now that the EMPEROR knows about it, he wants it. A lot.

The Emperor has commanded DARTH VADER to find the saber for him. Fortunately, it was shattered long ago, with its crystal fragments hidden throughout the galaxy to prevent their power from being used for evil. But nothing can be lost forever, and the quest to unite the Kyber Saber is about to draw in an unlikely young trio of heroes: the FREEMAKERS, a family of siblings who run a humble starship salvage and repair shop aboard the space station known as THE WHEEL.

Although they don't know it, the Freemakers are about to be caught up in an adventure that may decide the future of the galaxy ...

PROFILE

Zander is the oldest of the Freemake siblings and the pilot of their salvage ship. He has a great memory for starship designs and can identify one from just a small piece. As a self-trained builder, he would much rather patch together something new than look at diagrams and schematics. He proudly calls his creations "Z-wings" ... but pretty much everyone else calls them "Uglies".

PROFILE

Kordi is the brains behind Freemaker Salvage and Repair. She chooses where the family will go to search for scrap, and she's a master salesperson whose rapid-fire speech is equally good at selling custom-built starships and talking herself and her brothers out of trouble. Her elaborate organizing system may look like a chaotic mess of parts and paperwork, but it keeps the shop running smoothly.

FREEMAKER HANGAR

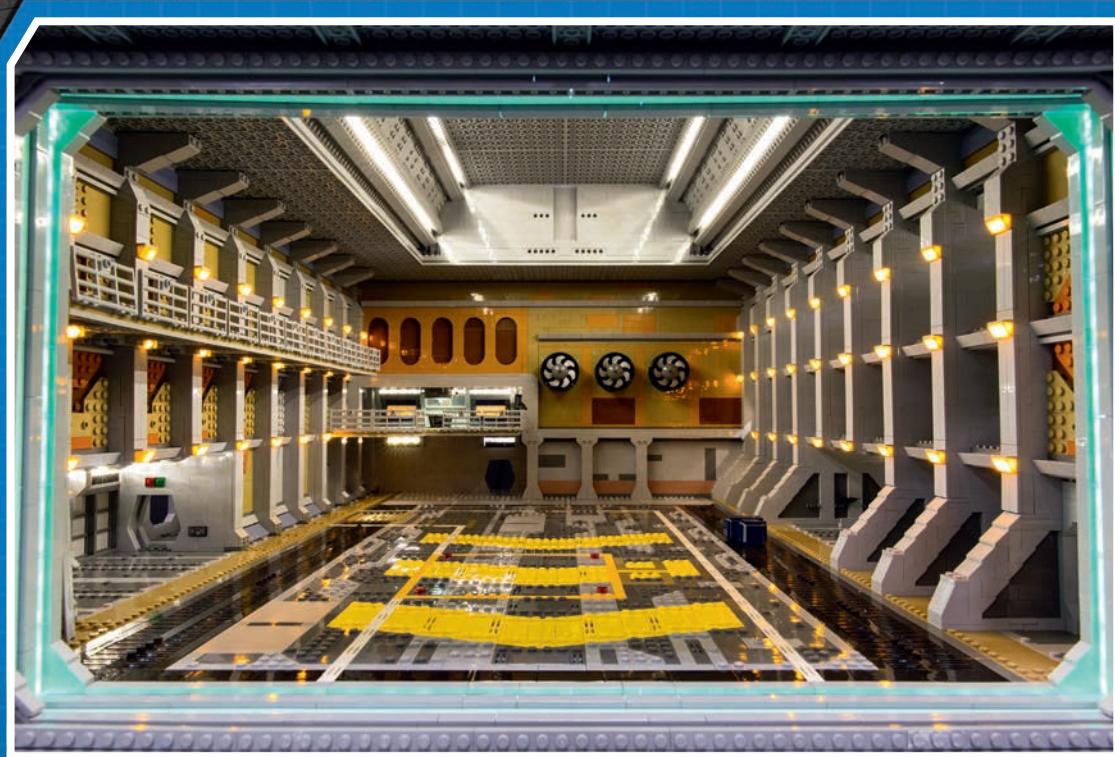

LEGO® MASTER BUILDER Q&A

How do you bring a location that only exists inside a computer-animated TV show into reality? We enlisted the skills of LEGO® Lead Model Designer Erik Varszegi to make a one-of-a-kind custom model of the Freemaker Salvage and Repair hangar bay, built out of real LEGO bricks and scaled to LEGO® Star Wars™ minifigures! Looking like it came right out of the show, the model is packed with details, including sliding doors, extra rooms, and even working electric lights.

Here's what Erik had to say about his spectacular Star Wars creation!

©2016 Lucasfilm Ltd. & TM. All rights reserved.

How big is the assembled hangar model, and how long did it take to build?

The hangar bay floor is 20 inches wide by 28 deep, but there are all sorts of offices and workshops and equipment bays that had to be added. The model as a whole is about 36 inches square. The building phase took place over three weeks.

Did you build in any secret features?

Since I had to add a lot of walls to support certain areas and to hide the wires for the lights, I created an airlock, complete with working doors and spare space suits and helmets. Also, there is an elevator built into the floor that leads to a sub-floor storage area.

What do the lights in the model do?

There are four switches that control key areas: the main lighting in the ceiling and equipment bays, the smaller rooms like the back office on the second floor and the sleeping cubbies as well as the airlock, the amber emergency lights in the columns (you can Alliance capital ships. I ran an LED light strip all the way around the mouth of the bay and hid it behind transparent and aqua-colored tiles. This gives it a weird, subtle greenish glow. It was totally an experiment.

Do you know how many bricks you used?

I'm not exactly sure. I did pre-planning in the LEGO Digital Designer program that had some 7,000 virtual elements in it. If I had to guess, the final model has five or six times that number.

Can you share any tips to help fans design and build their own LEGO® Star Wars™ creations?

The best advice I can give is when you get a new LEGO set, open it up and build it by the instructions. You can learn quite a bit about new elements and new techniques to use them with your old bricks. Play with your new set for a few days, but then take it apart and maybe mix it with other bricks to come up with something completely new and different using what you have learned change the color of the light based on what color bricks you put over them), and the last and coolest light effect is the force field that protects the hangar from the vacuum of space. This is something you see in all Star Wars hangars, from the Death Star to Rebel the actual construction old-school style, with lots and lots of bins of parts around me, and it's difficult to keep track of how much is going into it as you build. I did some from those instructions. This is basically what the Freemakers are doing when they build Uglies together: coming up with something cool from their own imaginations.
